

Buddy's skin & coat support report

Buddy's basics are strong — the biggest opportunities are a consistent omega-3 source for his itchy skin, cleaner treat habits, and a small portion adjustment.

Likely contributors

- 1 No omega routine. Buddy's food and treats show no consistent source of EPA/DHA omega-3s, which matter most for year-round itching and heavy shedding.

Hydration

86%

2 Rotating treats. Frequently changing treat brands makes it hard to spot which ingredient may be bothering his skin.

3 Slight calorie surplus. Portions plus extras likely run a bit above his needs for a moderately active 62 lb adult.

Try this for 4 weeks

- ✓ Keep the main food stable — change only one thing at a time.
- ✓ Add a daily omega-3 source: sardines in water or a skin & coat supplement.
- ✓ Pick ONE simple treat and pause the rotation for 4 weeks.
- ✓ Track itching daily on a 1-5 scale with a quick note.
- ✓ Measure meals precisely; trim portions by about 10%.

When to call a vet

If Buddy develops open sores, patchy hair loss, ear discharge or infections, or the itching keeps worsening despite changes, see your veterinarian — that pattern needs medical eyes before any nutrition tweak.

OPTIONAL SUPPORT MATCH

Best Pup Choice match: Omega-3 Skin & Coat Chews

If oily fish isn't practical daily, a consistent omega-3 chew (wild salmon oil, biotin, vitamin E) covers the same gap — for Buddy's weight that's 4 chews a day.

“My 3 dogs LOVE the taste of these Omega skin and coat chews! I love that their coats look extra shiny and it helps with their itchy skin from food allergens!”
